

Tips on how to best use Webscorer Live Tracking

*** Links will not be active until after the race starts ***

When you click on the link it will take you to the “Latest recorded lap” screen shown below. This will be the most useful screen and likely all you will need. It will look something like the screenshot below. All runners are listed according to the last aid station they have been recorded at. By clicking on the dropdown (purple arrow), you can narrow down who is listed by age or gender. On all Webscorer screens, you can sort by any of the columns by clicking on the column header (examples at orange arrows). By default this screen will sort by the latest lap timed for each runner, so runners who have made it farther are at the top.

For those that want to dig a bit deeper, there are two other screens available as discussed below.

- 1) The first alternative is the “Live results” screen which is found by clicking on the “Live results” header (blue arrow below) at the top of the column listing.
  - “Live results” will allow you to see all the times recorded at any aid station via the dropdown in the “After” column header (green arrow) and the order the runners got to that timing point – which is the number in parenthesis. Initially the names are sorted based on overall race status but clicking the sort arrows next to arrow will list in order they arrived at this aid station.

- 2) The other will allow you to view splits between individual timing points. This is found by clicking the race name next to “Race progress” (red arrow in the above screenshot). This will bring up the high-level view shown below. Clicking on the Lap times (orange arrow) or a Category (Green arrow) will take you to the screens below. Clicking on the “Live race” link will take you back to the screens discussed above.
